Coon was encamped in their immediate locality. But what is the use of Gen. Coon going to all this trouble when Gen. Eddison, of phonograph and electric light fame, has discovered a scheme by which the squelched without firing a gan or the loss of a man. He has demonstrated that a stream of electricity charged with water can be made very fatal and propos es to construct a fort, which he will man with not more than. 25 men. He will put in this an electrical machine of 20, 000 volts energy, one wire from which would be grounded and the other connected with a pipe capable of throwing water under a pressure of 400 pounds to the square inch. When an enemy approaches, the men in the fort will simp-

If they want to be more merciful, they will only apply enough electricity to stun their enemies into insensibility and then take the whole lot prisoners. This would be entirely practicable if Gen. Edison could entirely practicable if Gen. Edison could first get permission of the Chilians to land and build his fort; but without standing room for his fortification it is difficult to see what headway he could make unless he could get near enough to shore with his batteries to operate his machine on board a ship of war, and as machine on board a ship of war, and as machine on board a ship of war, and as the man of war would be likely to have all the fighting it could do to enable it to keep afloat, the electrical water ma- to the wildest passes of the wildest mountains in chine would stand a first rate chance of being knocked out of water before it had accomplished anything worthy of the 38 American sailors were carousing and turned his water battery loose upon those warlike sailors, he would have saved the people of this country a vast amount of unnecessary bluster and brag.
